GLANCING OVER HIGH SCHOOL PROSPECTS

Many Disqualifications Face Veteran Men, With Outlook for Winning Eleven Very Uncertain.

Has the gridiron sport died in the Janesville high school as far as winning titles is concerned, or is it possible to round out an eleven this fall with the majority of veterans disqualified, and little or no half-experienced men in the school? This question is facing Coach Curtis today and his call for candidates following the opening of school one week from today, will be a loud one, beckoning every possible "bustle" in the school.

The men are getting smaller every year, and especially in the high schools all over the country. Football in 1910 in high schools was exterminated to a very large extent. The incoming freshmen remain small, if the incoming freshmen remain small, is the idea. Some critics look for high school football to fall off within a few years, due practically to this reason. The small youth weighing around 120 pounds is too light for the strenuous game, and school heads are fast considering the question of abolishing high school football for this reason.

So long as every high school is growing weaker in football material, some critics believe the game should be extended as long as no great harm is caused. The question is of course left to each individual school. It will be up to one school to brave the idea of abolishing the pastime of twelve weeks, and then it will be up to the other schools to follow.

City Will Celebrate Hundredth Birthday "Old Glory" Beginning September Sixth.

Beginning Sunday September sixth the Star Spangled Banner will float over Janesville for a period of one week in celebration of the Nation's Centennial festival which will be held in Baltimore, Maryland. The week will be flag week in this city and in others which will adopt patriotic measures for honoring the hundredth birthday of "Old Glory."

Mayor James A. Fathers this morning received a letter from James H. Preston, mayor of Baltimore, asking that Janesville be represented in the celebration. Baltimore and other cities a representative be sent on September tenth which is set aside for Municipal Day. A parade will be held in which every department of the municipality will have an extensive float descriptive of the manner in which city work is done.

Janesville will share in the celebration by having as many flags out as possible during the week. Mayor Fathers also received an invitation to attend a conference on service and rates of public utilities which will be held by the call of Hon. N. Blankenburg, Mayor of Philadelphia, Nov. 12th, 13th and 14th. Mayor Mitchell, of New York, Mayor Harrison, Chicago, and Mayor Baker, Cleveland, have invited to the conference and many municipal heads are expected to attend. A permanent utilities bureau, through which the American cities may co-operate in exchanging data as to rates, service standards and costs factors in city utility matters will be organized at the conference.

COSTS CHRISTENSEN LARGEST AMOUNT IN PRIMARY CAMPAIGN

Beloit Candidate for District Attorney Spends $168—Big Expense for Rosa and Winegar.

Chester H. Christensen of Beloit, candidate for the nomination of district attorney on Thursday G. Dunwid in opposition. Christensen, has spent the largest of any of the county candidates according to the report of the county clerk's office on Saturday. Mr. Christensen has expended a total of $168.26 in his efforts of his candidacy which his opponents, Mr. Dunwid, has spent but $39.55.

Some indication of the fierceness with which the contest was waged between Assemblyman C. D. Rosa and Albert J. Winegar, seeking the nomination for the assembly in the second district, may be seen from their respective campaign expenditures. Mr. Winegar has spent $110.95. In the first assembly district the expense accounts of the candidates do not run so high. L. E. White of Edgerton has spent $52.63; D. M. Barless of Janesville has spent $16.42; and Lucius E. Kennedy has spent $35.17.

Nearly two hundred dollars have been spent by the republican aspirants for the nomination of sheriff. R. G. Scheibel of Beloit has been the most prodigal in his expenditures with a total of $127.63 up to Saturday. The others have paid out as follows: A. Odell Chamberlain, $34.67; E. H. Ransom, $56.20; and Alvah Maxfield, $33.10. The democratic aspirant for the sheriff's office, who is without opposition, reports a total expense of $3.25.

In the democratic ranks, John J. Riordan of Beloit, candidate for the assembly in the second district, has spent $45.30. In the first district, C. C. Peterson has spent $54 and A. M. Paul has spent $3. The county democratic committee reports an expense of $3.25.

Charles L. Reynolds, reporting for the entire social democratic party, announces an expenditure of $3.95. The figures given are not final for the primary campaign as there is still another filing date after the election.

WAR NOW EFFECTING CHRISTIAN MISSIONS

American Board Mission Work is Involved in the War Territory—Pastors Must Fight.

An important phase of the present European war is its effect upon Christian missions. Questions are coming every day to the officers of the American board as to how much that society's work is involved and what action will be taken as to the outgoing new missionaries and the returning to their fields of those now on furlough. At present only one mission of the board is engaged in the war, that is the one centering in Prague, Austria. Here Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Clark and Rev. and Mrs. John S. Porter with six children live. They direct an extensive work in Russia, Bohemia and Moravia. Ninety congregations, two of them in Vienna, are in their field. Most of these have native pastors and many have good houses of worship. The Americans are probably quite safe but the native pastors, colporters and church members will have to go into the army. All communication between the mission and the home office is cut off.

In Serbia the one station now in operation is Monastir, far away from the present fighting. Letters from one of the board's staff, who has been at Belgrade, speak of hardships brought upon the Christian mission by the new alignments of territory between Serbia and Bulgaria since churches made up of former Bulgarians must now conduct their services in the Serbian tongue. If there should be a successful attempt to create a new Slavic state, probably the board's entire Balkan mission would be involved and the workers in Albania, Bulgaria and Serbia would have to go through another period of war.

No new missionaries or returning missionaries can now be sent to the Balkans or to any of the three Turkish missions in Asia, neither can they secure transportation through the Mediterranean on their way to India and Ceylon. Passage to China and Japan can only be secured with safety in American steamers across the Pacific. There was formerly a time no secure way of sending money to the missionaries in the near east. Supplies, of course, are likely to be laid hold of anywhere they may be found and, indeed, can not be routed to most of the stations.

In the meantime missionaries and native Christians are always in demand to organize relief work, to care for the sick and wounded, to turn missionaries' homes for the use of chaplains into hospitals and dispensaries and to give comfort and a ray of hope to the sick and heart-broken. Count Okuma of Japan says that the end of European civilization has come. The missionary can then say that these days of horror the Christian religion gives the only help there is given at all.

BLOCK SIGNAL USE MAY BE ENFORCED

Pending Bill in Congress May Require All Railroads to Install New Safety Devices.

A bill is pending in congress which would give the interstate commerce commission full jurisdiction over all forms of block signals and interlocking plants. A wing of the commission now looks after the enforcement of safety-appliance laws, but the federal body has no original jurisdiction in requiring a railroad to install signals or devices.

If this measure passes the commerce commission will have power to order the use of block signals and automatic train control on any or all railroads. It will also have power to require a railroad to use any appliance, in principle, making for safety of travel.

It is believed that such a bill might be better than blanket law compelling all railroads to use certain block signals and train controls—that is, controls in detail. Laws, however, will probably be unnecessary, as many of the progressive railroad managers and Lilliputian proved signals and automatic train controls. The Burlington road has just authorized the installation of an automatic train control on the Chicago-St. Paul line. The Chicago and Eastern Illinois is also equipping a section of its road with a train control.

This date will mark the dividing line between motoring as it has been known and motoring as the future will know it.

The climax in motor car progress
The utmost in motor car efficiency
The maximum in motor car service
The extreme in motor car luxury
The practical things and the things worth while

For these and for all of the elements which contribute in the highest degree to the charms of motoring, the public has learned to look each year to the Cadillac.

Cadillac ideals, Cadillac engineering genius, Cadillac resources and Cadillac methods, are reinforced by the experience gleaned in the successful production of more than eighty thousand cars—the greatest number of the high grade type produced by any one maker in the industry.

The public, guided by a recognition of the Cadillac policy to avoid exaggeration and overdrawn statements and guided by its policy to under-claim rather than to over-claim, has always felt secure in accepting Cadillac representations at their full worth.

Therefore, when the Cadillac Company says that it is about to offer a motor car which marks developments and advancements so great, so vast, so widespread in their scope, that past achievements pale almost into insignificance, you are justified in looking forward to something which even the word "extraordinary" fails adequately to describe.

New pleasures and new comforts are in store.

Luxuries of which you may have dreamed but for which you had hardly dared hope, are to become a reality.

Motoring will possess new charms. The word will have a new meaning and a new significance.

You may draw a mental picture of your ideal car-of what it should be capable of accomplishing, of how it should perform.

Sport Snap Shots

This is George Stallings' twenty-ninth season in professional baseball. He first started in the game—we'll figure it out for you—in '86. He began as a manager in '93 with Augusta and got away to a nice start with a pennant his first year. He has since been in and out of the major leagues, but he has always shown real ability as a manager, and he is not planning to quit very soon. They are paying him a fat wage.

flag. In 1907 he was sick and out of the game, but it was the only season he has missed. After two seasons with the Yankees he brought them from second place to first, then up to second place and was then let out to make way for Hal Chase. Which was perhaps the poorest judgment Frank Farrell ever showed. That was in the fall of 1910. The two seasons following Stallings was with Buffalo, and in the fall of 1912 he made a deal with James Gaffney whereby he became part owner and manager of the Braves. When he took hold of the Braves they were tailenders and had been for several seasons. And now after two seasons with them he has built up a club that is making the Giants hustle for the banner. And many are backing Stallings to win. He has made many friends.

Many major league scouts recently hurried to buy tickets to Wilkes-Barre. The most brilliant thing yet in the way of a phenom has been discovered. A youthful twirler of that neighborhood pitched both games of a double-header and both of the games were shutouts. Eighteen innings without a hit. Easily a new world's record.

It should be noticed that the Feds are offering their fans a neat little pennant fight. As late as this in the season it is most anybody's pennant and even Kansas City in the bottom notch has a chance at it though a slim one. It's easy to see that there will be a number of games and other frantic demonstrations when the season is drawing to a close.

Brooklyn hasn't had a look-in with the Cards this year. Out of sixteen games played to date Huggins and his men have won thirteen of them.

Now that Fielder Jones is back in the managerial business, many are thinking up lovely things about him. And many indeed are the eulogies that have appeared. Almost everyone who has had a word to say in the matter has admitted that the game has never seen a better manager than Jones. It is said that signing him was the biggest trick the Feds have yet put over and that he will be their best card. When the fielder won a pennant in 1906 with a group of players that would have been the despair of any other manager, fans sat up and took another look at Jones. It was inside baseball that won games when Jones was leading the Sox, because the team didn't hit hard enough to lift them out of the second division. It was under his regime that they were tagged the "hitless wonders." And he managed to make his pitchers believe they were hitting the slide if they didn't pitch shutout ball. So most of them did. Fielder Jones' work with the Feds will be watched with interest. His joining the Feds, by the way, makes it seem that they are not planning to quit very soon. They are paying him a fat wage.

AMUSEMENTS

AT MYERS THEATRE.

"Go ahead," said W. N. Selig, when it was decided to filmize "The Spoilers." "Use what money and time are required to make the supreme American photoplay. Spare nothing." The result is shown in the nine reel drama to be shown at Myers Theatre three days Sept. 6, 7, 8. Rex Beach's novel has been reproduced in a way impossible to any other form of art. It is vital from start to finish. Love, courage, determination, ambition, deceit, brutality, hand to hand encounters by desperate men for desperate measures, corrupt courts and the law of primal rights in fierce clash; these are some of the elements that keep the suspense at high tension from start to finish. There are nine reels, hundreds of scenes and thousands of incidents graphically portrayed. The acting is vigorous, lifelike and tells a vital American story in a tremendously vital way.

AT THE APOLLO.

"The Perils of Pauline," which is shown every Tuesday at the Apollo, grows more interesting with each episode. In the past three episodes Harry Marvin and his adopted sister Pauline are left orphaned by the death of their father who left half his fortune to Harry and half to Pauline to be held in trust for her by his Secretary Owen till she marries. He makes the provision that should Pauline die before marriage, that the fortune should go to Owen. Owen, a villain in the power of a tough character, Hicks, plots Pauline's death so the fortune would be his. He fails in one attempt through the intervention of Harry, and decides to get her away from Harry. He persuades her to go with him on a treasure hunt. Harry is suspicious, and follows in the disguise of an old man and warns Pauline. She, however, not recognizing him, decides to go ahead. The fourth episode appears tonight.

On Wednesday will be presented "Should a Woman Tell," featuring Miss N. A. Traxner and the Imperial Russian comedy of St. Petersburg. Vera, the beautiful daughter of Countess Dubowski, while slumming, falls a prey to a low character who attacks her. Upon regaining consciousness and learning of her predicament she kills him and escapes. On her wedding day she confides her secret with her husband, Prince Dolzky, who orders her away. Should she have told?

Talking.
Money talks, but so do persons who haven't any money.—Albany Journal.

Keeps Your Liver Healthy Active. Cleanses Your System Thoroughly. A man in Kentucky just told a friend that Foley Cathartic Tablets were the most wonderful medicine that had ever entered his system. Said he would not be without them. Neither would you, if you had ever tried them for chronic constipation or for an occasional purge. Better for you than calomel. Keeps your liver active. Stout people can't find anything to equal them for comfort. W. T. Sherer.

In a few weeks without mixing in the European struggle at all. This watchful, waiting policy is all right on paper, but the average Mexican does not understand it at all, as is evidenced by the attitude of Carranza.

President Cleveland issued the noted order that federal office-holders must keep out of state politics, and yet on the first accession of the democratic party to power since the days of Cleveland, the federal office-holders have been most diligent in state political affairs, not only by cash contributions, but by active work. But what could you expect from men who have been away from the plum tree for so long?

That Germany was fully prepared for the present struggle for years becomes more evident as the campaign progresses. Had it not been for Belgium's unexpected attitude the war might now have been over before England could have mobilized its army. Paris a Germany city and Russia a Germany ally. One accident marred the whole plan—the defense of Liege.

Canada is showing its loyalty to the mother country by sending its best in crops, men and money to aid in the great struggle. That the men from the Canadian will give good account of themselves is certain and in their ranks will be found many who really could claim citizenship in the United States if pressed closely.

Well, the vote is almost all in now and we shall soon know what Wisconsin wants. A continuation of the present methods of juggling state finances and high taxes or whether the people have been sufficiently aroused to cast their ballots for men who stand for government by the people, of the people, and for the people.

One dispatch announces that Russia has ruthlessly defeated the German and Austrian armies in two different engagements. The next dispatch says that Russia has lost thirty thousand men to the Germans and that Austria is pushing its forces into Russian Poland. Which can you believe?

Paris is preparing for a siege. Its timid inhabitants are fleeing from the city and the government is raising a few old snobs in the surrounding country to make the service of their big defense guns more accurate, and the world wonders what is coming.

President Wilson has about decided that he will be a candidate for re-nomination and re-election if nominated in 1916. No one really doubted for a minute he would not be a candidate, but what will Champ Clark, Underwood, Harmon and yes, Bryan, too, say to this?

Americans abroad write that they long for the sight of the good old U. S. A. and will never care to wander in foreign climes again. Meanwhile anxious relatives on this side of the Atlantic can not understand the delay in their arrival.

Much pity is wasted on the poor Indian, but just stop to consider what this country would have been if poor "Lo" had not been driven back.

On The Spur of The Moment

Luck. If jewels were to drop from all the trees and fall like hail. Upon a certain day, and folks should get them by the pal— That certainly would be the day that I would be in jail.

If steamboats sold for ten cents each, I'm very certain that I would find, but not till then, That some galoot had come along and touched me for my ten.

If I were to be run down in the street, I know 'twould be Not by some fancy auto; this would not be luck's decree. 'Twould be by some garbage wagon that would make a mess of me.

From the Hickeyville Clarion. Constable Ezra Hand says some culprit stole the 40 cent off the town pump, but the same wasn't missed for two or three weeks, as nobody in this village drinks the durned stuff any longer, except the preacher. The minister discovered that the culprit was gone when he returned from his vacation.

Hank Tumms says if a fellow could do all his farm work in the winter when it is nice and cool and could loaf in the summer when it is good and hot there would be some class to it.

William Tibbitts, our postmaster, suffered a severe loss one day this past week. It was so hot that ten postage stamps ran together and stuck so tight he couldn't get 'em apart. As a result there ain't no postage stamps on sale at present and won't be until he gets another dozen from Washington. He is goin' to wait until cold weather before he orders 'em.

Nothing to Do Till Tomorrow. The life of a writer is one path of sweet-scented blushing roses. If you don't believe it, ask any editor. All he has got to do is work. One of the esteemed weekly editors sizes up the matter as follows:

To run a newspaper all a fellow has to do is to be able to write poems, discuss the tariff and money questions, umpire a baseball game, report a wedding, saw wood, describe a fire so that the readers will shed their wraps, make $1 do the work of $10, shine at a dance, measure calico, abuse the liquor habit, test whiskey, subscribe to charity, go without meals, attack free silver, wear a top hat, bury, overlook scandal, appraise babies, delight pumpkin raisers, minister to the afflicted, heal the disgruntled, fight to a finish, set type, hold opinions, sweep the office, peek at the prayer meetings and stand in with everybody and everything.

How's This? We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years and believe him perfectly honorable in all business dealings and financially able to carry out any obligation made by him.

The Bore

May fates protect us from the bore, Who sits around the village stove And turns loose his full vocal power Upon the questions of the hour. There's nothing that he doesn't know. He runs the nation. Makes it go. He fathers not to take a chance In making clear the world's finance, But he never has a ten cent piece To buy a box of axle grease.

PRIMARY ELECTION DRAWS LIGHT VOTE

TOTAL NUMBER OF BALLOTS CAST IN CITY LESS THAN 600 AT TWELVE-THIRTY.

USING SECOND CHOICE

Mary Ann Law is Being Invoked in the Interest of Republican Candidates—Vote Light in County.

At twelve-thirty o'clock today there were less than 600 votes cast in the five precincts of this city, indicating that the interest in the outcome of the primary election is not active despite the strenuous campaigns which have been waged by the numerous candidates. The same condition holds true throughout the county and political wiseacres predict that not more than one-half of the county's voting strength will be polled.

Comparing the figures of today with those of 1912, secured at the same hour, there is a slight increase this year over that of two years ago, but there is a decided falling off in comparison with 1910 and 1908. The following table will be of interest in this connection, showing the vote for the four years as secured during the noon hour:

	1914	1912	1910	1908
First	85	74	189	163
Second	89	77	180	128
Third	191	117	283	280
Fourth	134	84	186	170
Fifth	91	83	91	83

It is evident that the second choice provision of the primary election law is being used extensively this year, a fact which will hinder somewhat the securing of the returns at the close of the election, and the counting of the second choice votes rather complicated work for the clerks and inspectors of election. The second choice provision may be applied only where there are more than two candidates seeking the nomination for the same office. In this county all contests of this class are confined to the republican ticket, and for the following offices on that ticket: State senator, assemblyman, first district and sheriff.

The polls close at the county precincts at five-thirty o'clock this afternoon and the closing at eight o'clock. A heavy vote is expected in this city between the hours of five and eight o'clock.

PRIMARY RETURNS TO BE SHOWN ON SCREEN AT GAZETTE OFFICE

City, County and General State News to Be Displayed—Will Be Late in Being Received.

Although it probably will be exceptionally late in securing any accurate news as to the possible outcome of today's primaries throughout the state, a fairly general idea can be obtained by watching the results as posted on the screen at the Gazette office this evening. Arrangements have been made to receive the returns from the county as fast as counted and the Associated Press will furnish the general state news. There may also be some important war bulletins at this time.

As the polls in the smaller cities and Milwaukee do not close until eight o'clock, it will be late before the count is reported, owing to the complications of the second choice ballots. The county polls close earlier and should be the first to be reported.

In order to accommodate the many who can not leave their homes but who desire the information first hand, the Gazette has arranged to give the news over the telephone to those who call 77 two rings on either the Wisconsin or Rock County phones. A request is made that the editorial room telephone be not called except to give returns, as it will be busy with reports.

GAZETTE REPORTER IS THE FIRST VICTIM IN STRAW HAT WAR

Pugnacious Scribe Has Classy Head-gear Smashed to Smithereens in Tussle With Countessman.

A Gazette reporter was the first victim in the straw hat war which was declared in Janesville today. Details of the initial skirmish in which the pugnacious and defiant scribe was the central figure, differ somewhat, but the one fact is certain—he is minus his classy straw head-gear since his summer's joy and pride.

In spite of the warnings amply set forth in his own paper to the effect that all straw hats worn after Sept. 1 were liable to be crushed, the indiscreet and contumacious scribe was this morning with his summer lid jauntily perched at the right angle above his left ear.

He wore a broad grin and with a swagger as he dashed into the city hall, from which headquarters of municipal authority had been issued the very edicts which he was so boldly violating.

But his confidence was soon to be dashed. The chief of police's office his handsome summer caddy (late purchased at a bargain counter marked down to one "bone," if the truth must be known), was snatched from his head before he knew when.

The scribe was snatched out of the window onto the muddy street.

Indignant and slightly chagrined, the scribe hastened to rescue his prized head-piece. He avoided the police, and, as the chief of police's office, he snuffed trouble here, too, and he took the further precaution to remove his now somewhat battered straw hat.

But he did not look for what was coming. His hat was cracked and crushed. But the scribe was now thoroughly roused and he was not going to submit tamely without a struggle.

He turned to see who was his assailant and there stood one of the city councilmen, getting a challenge.

A tussle ensued and when the two had wiped up considerable dust from the floor and the melee ended, the once bright and shapely straw was nothing more than a cloud of rubbish, rused beyond recognition.

The said scribe is now wearing a modest felt hat which he claims was once the property of the belligerent councilman. The latter, he avers, was forced to spend $3 for a hat of the same quality.

The game was boosted by at least the purchase of one hat today. The councilman's side of the story was not investigated, however, so the reporter's contentions may be subject to modification.

The electric meter, in an up stairs closet, was burned out and the flames ignited cotton, papers and clothing stored in the room and destroyed a hat and other articles of clothing. The fire department arrived within a few minutes after the alarm was sounded. After putting out what fire endangered the home, the two fire wagons were sent back to the station while Chief Klein remained to complete the work.

This move proved a wise one, for within a few moments after returning from the Gower residence the second alarm was sounded at ten thirty from the residence of Fred Booth, at the intersection of Bluff and Third streets.

The fire had been fired and the wooden siding had caught fire. Chemicals were used and only a small damage was caused. The fire was caused by a lighted match being dropped among the papers and kindling.

At the residence of George Muenchow, 514 South Jackson street, lightning went into the residence by means of the wires and set fire to the bed clothing, endangering Gertrude Muenchow, a four year old girl. The child was frightened by the shock and flames and her screams attracted the attention of Mrs. Muenchow, who put out the flames with her hands.

At several other South Jackson street residences the lightning current blew out fuses and set the clock were lit by many people. It could not be learned just where the lightning struck, but it most likely hit a tree in the neighborhood and communicated to the wires.

LIGHTNING CURRENT CAUSES FIRE ALARMS

Small Damage Caused By Fire at Gower Residence on South Academy Street—Two Alarms.

Lightning currents carried by electric wires caused a small fire damage at the residence of Bert Gower at 618 South Jackson street during last night's rain and electric storm.

The fire started in the kitchen and spread into the home through the meter, which was burnt out, but but for the prompt work of Fireman Cronin, who happened to be near the house at the time, and William Kemmer, a neighbor, serious damage might have resulted.

The electric meter, in an up stairs closet, was burned out and the flames ignited cotton, papers and clothing stored in the room and destroyed a hat and other articles of clothing. The fire department arrived within a few minutes after the alarm was sounded. WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE GIFT OF LOVE.

"PEOPLE think that there are conditions excluding the necessity of love in their intercourse with men, but such conditions do not exist. Things may be treated without love; one may chop wood, make bricks, force iron without love, but one can no more deal with people without love than one can handle bees without care. The nature of bees is such that if you handle them carelessly you will harm them as well as yourself. It is the same with people. And it cannot be denied because mutual love is the basic law of human life." Tolstoy.

A friend of mine has two daughters. One of them is a sharp, irritable manner, and I have never heard her speak a tender word or offer her a caress. The other is not in a position to do much for her mother, except love her, but she does that with all her heart, and not only with her heart, but with her manner and her voice. And to see her mother expanding in this atmosphere of love and tenderness which the presence of this daughter creates, is like seeing a bud expand into a blossom when the sun comes after a storm.

Her face lights up. The timidity of manner which she is apt to show in the presence of the other daughter disappears. She smiles, and the moisture of a happiness greater than the happiness of smiles and laughter often comes into her eyes.

This daughter sometimes grieves that she cannot afford to give her mother more. She does not need to grieve. She is giving one of the greatest gifts that one human being can give to another—the gift of love.

The atmosphere of love is the greatest gift that one human being can give to another. It makes them grow and blossom. To expect a human being to flourish in an atmosphere of bad temper, of suppressed irritability, of disapproval or dislike, is like expecting a plant to blossom in a dark cellar.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Apart from religion, the end of man is to secure a plenty of good things of this world, with life, health, and peace to enjoy them.

—John Locke, 1689.

The man who holds a ladder to the bottom is frequently of as much service as the man at the top.

AS COOL AS A CUCUMBER.

The juicy, refreshing cucumber is such a welcome hot weather food that we should vary the manner of serving them when it is possible.

Cucumber Salad.—Slice very thin a half of a small spanish onion and lay in the bottom of a salad bowl; on this slice very thinly two cucumbers, season with salt and a teaspoonful of sugar. Let stand two hours before serving.

Then mix one tablespoonful of tomato sauce, a teaspoonful of mustard, three tablespoonfuls of cream and a tablespoonful of olive oil. Pour this over the salad and serve with roast beef.

Cucumber seeds. If at all large, should always be removed, as they are hard to digest.

Cucumber With Eggs.—Peel a large sized cucumber and divide into two-inch pieces, cutting off the ends. Take a round cutter and stamp out a portion from each piece. Place them in a buttered pan with a little stock or water and cook in the oven until tender. Use care not to break the shapes.

Beat up three eggs, add two tablespoonfuls of tomato pulp, half a tablespoonful of butter, salt, pepper and cook until creamy. Place the cucumber shapes on a hot dish and fill with the egg mixture. Cover with tomato sauce and serve hot.

Cucumber Jelly.—Grate four good sized cucumbers. To two tablespoonfuls of gelatin add half a cupful of water and when softened add onion juice, salt, pepper and four tablespoonfuls of sugar. Put over a gentle heat and when hot pour into molds after all the ingredients have been well mixed together. Turn out and serve with french dressing on lettuce.

Boiled Cucumbers.—Pare and cut the cucumbers in four pieces lengthwise. Remove the seeds, sprinkle with salt and let stand an hour. Drain and cook in boiling water. Serve on fried bread with a hot egg sauce well seasoned with pepper, salt and onion juice.

Relish.—Maggell.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) What I dislike very much and to which my boy friends are always referring to is the hair from the upper lip. My boy friends consider me too young to go out in company, and hence they have never asked to take me anywhere. How do you think I should inform them? I don't see any way. Please tell me.

TROUBLED. (1) I am afraid that you can not have the dimples removed without a possible injury to the face. They are generally regarded as an attractive thing in women, and I would refuse to be teased by an allusion to them if I were you.

(2) I am afraid they are right. You will have lots of time for that later.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Will you kindly tell me if ammonia and peroxide applied every night will in time kill the growth of hair on upper lip?

(2) Is there anything to make eyelashes grow long and dark?

(3) What will give light hair a shiny look? What is good for a shiny nose? What is good for a shiny nose?

(4) Is it all right to visit the "movies" on a Sunday afternoon?

(5) Please give recipe for chocolate pie.

(6) Does merize wax banish pimples?

(7) A wishes to introduce to her boy friend. What does a say in introducing a boy and what does a say after being introduced?

(8) Many of them are rather tightly and turned under in a French twist, with a large bone hairpin to finish it.

(9) Yes. (3) I do not think they will.

(4) I should not advise it, but I may be old-fashioned, my dear. What is your parents' attitude toward it?

(5) Chocolate pie. Make a custard by pouring two cupfuls of scalding milk gradually upon three eggs that have been beaten well with four tablespoonfuls of sugar. Turn into the fire, stir in a half cup grated sweet chocolate, remove from fire, add teaspoon of vanilla, and pour mixture into a pie plate lined with puff paste. Bake until done.

(6) I have never heard that it does. (7) A may say, "Permit me to introduce Mr. B to you," or, "I should like to have you meet Mr. B. If B is a girl, you should say, "This is my young man to her. B may say that he is pleased to make his acquaintance, is glad to know him, or he may simply say, "How do you do."

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Will you kindly tell me if ammonia and

Peggy & Company

Papa Propounds Some Personal and Rather Interesting Questions.

Thus far these Peggy papers have related the fittings about of a carefree and unthinking girl, just out of school, who has given little heed to the serious side of life. To her each day has meant nothing more than a fresh opportunity to sally out for new experiences and new ways of having a good time.

Peggy's mother thought that she might develop into a home helper, but also Peggy's attitude toward domestic duties is that of a dodger. Her sortie into the business world lasted just one week, and then she lost all interest in the easy duties that she had undertaken in her father's office.

Persons who are not parents are likely to throw up their hands over Peggy and call her a spoiled baggage, wondering how she can ever be of use to anyone or to herself.

But parents know that the world is full of girls who contribute nothing to the common labor of supporting the home, and who live off the toil of others, waiting upon by their mothers and kept in pretty clothes by fathers who are often hard put to it to meet their obligations.

Are you guessing that Peggy has a day of reckoning before her? Well, you guess correct.

One evening, when the absence of young men callers left an open date, Mr. Gray invited Peggy into a little conference. He had been thinking a few thoughts about the way of girls who are allowed to "have their heads," and from whom nothing is required.

"Peggy," began her father, "I want to get your ideas of the duties of a girl like yourself."

"Duties?" repeated Peggy archly. "Why, papa, I don't think I know just what you mean."

"Exactly," nodded papa. "And the reason why you don't understand lies in the fact that you have never given the question a moment's thought. Isn't that the truth?"

"Oh," pouted Peggy, "duty is such an ugly word. Of course no girl likes to think of tiresome things when she wants to be happy. Do you want me to be happy, papa?" Peggy has a wheedling way, and she likes to beg the question when she is getting in close quarters.

This time papa declined to be sidetracked. "You mother and I have done a great deal for you, Peggy. What have you done for us, or rather, what do you propose to do? I don't ask anything by myself, of course. But what about your mother?"

Peggy couldn't think of a word to say. "I'll tell you what you're doing for your mother. You are letting her bring your breakfast to you in bed mornings. You are letting her launder your party dresses. You are letting her work in the kitchen early and late, with practically no assistance from you, even when your guests are being prepared.

Names Connected With the Law. The original bearer of the name of Legless was a lawyer. Originally, the name was spelled Laegless, the expression signifying "learned in the law." Strangely enough Laegless is derived from exactly the same source, and signifies exactly opposite to its apparent meaning.

Equally Unprofitable. Nursing a grouch is pretty much like lugging a sprinkling can to water a Canada thistle.

What are your objects in life, Peggy? What are you here for? What do you mean to do with yourself, and for others. You think about this, and tomorrow night we will have another talk.

And Peggy went very quietly to her room.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) What is the latest style in hair-dressing for young girls?

(2) Should a geranium slip be placed in water before putting it in the soil?

(3) Will white feathers be worn all winter?

(4) Is it all right to visit the "movies" on a Sunday afternoon?

(5) Please give recipe for chocolate pie.

(6) Does merize wax banish pimples?

(7) A wishes to introduce to her boy friend. What does a say in introducing a boy and what does a say after being introduced?

(8) Many of them are rather tightly and turned under in a French twist, with a large bone hairpin to finish it.

(9) Yes. (3) I do not think they will.

(4) I should not advise it, but I may be old-fashioned, my dear. What is your parents' attitude toward it?

(5) Chocolate pie. Make a custard by pouring two cupfuls of scalding milk gradually upon three eggs that have been beaten well with four tablespoonfuls of sugar. Turn into the fire, stir in a half cup grated sweet chocolate, remove from fire, add teaspoon of vanilla, and pour mixture into a pie plate lined with puff paste. Bake until done.

(6) I have never heard that it does. (7) A may say, "Permit me to introduce Mr. B to you," or, "I should like to have you meet Mr. B. If B is a girl, you should say, "This is my young man to her. B may say that he is pleased to make his acquaintance, is glad to know him, or he may simply say, "How do you do."

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Will you kindly tell me if ammonia and peroxide applied every night will in time kill the growth of hair on upper lip?

(2) Is there anything to make eyelashes grow long and dark?

(3) What will give light hair a shiny look? What is good for a shiny nose? What is good for a shiny nose?

"Opportunity!" he sneered. "Yes, opportunity for plain, ordinary thieving. That's what it was, and I did it for you. Now there are two alternatives, Jane. One to go on, and the other to give up. If you want to go on I'm going to have my way this time and Brand will have to deal with me and answer to me, not to you. I'm not going to let him off with $10,000 by squaring matters at the bank, and go out into the world penniless. I am going to clear my conscience and make a clean breast of it or I am going to make it plain blackmail and make it pay. Either we're crooks or we're honest and if we've made up our minds to be crooks let's be good ones."

"Bob!" she cried again, backing away while he followed. Her back was to the wall now and she crouched almost as if she expected a blow.

"Yes, crooks!" he persisted in answer to her look of horror. "That's what I said. Crooks!"

His hand was extended, stiff doubled. But of a sudden it dropped to his side. Her look of appeal of abject terror—pleared the mist of his clouded brain. He stopped, limp and helpless.

"Well, what—about it—Jane? I've explained it all—I guess."

"You have," she answered in halting tones. "You have explained—about—yourself, and you should have done so six years ago, before I married you."

She staggered toward the door to the dining room and he followed with hands outstretched in mute appeal.

"Don't, Bob, please," she cried softly. "Let me go."

She passed through the door quickly and turned the lock. He stood looking after her a moment, a pathetic picture of complete despair. He tottered to the door and sank upon it with face buried in his hands. So he sat for several minutes, only heaving shoulders betraying the depth of his anguish.

Then he dropped his hands suddenly and straightened up. His face still portrayed bitter hopelessness, but there was mingled with it a demoniacal look of resolve. The look did not escape a silent spectator on the stairs.

Reynolds stepped briskly now to a little cabinet beside the piano and bent over it, opening a concealed slide. A bit of shining blue metal flashed in his hands and he turned the cylinder quickly to make sure that it contained its deadly load. He moved to the table for his hat and as he did so Dick slipped down the remaining steps and stepped softly across the room. As Reynolds looked up the reporter stood before him.

"Going out, Bob?" he asked unconcernedly. "Rather late, I should say."

"Only for a moment, Dick. I need the air."

"Can I trail along?"

"You needn't. I'll be right back."

He stepped forward, but the reporter backed along in front of him. As they neared the door Reynolds made a dash for it, but Dick was too quick for him. He stepped slightly aside and caught his friend from the rear, pinning both his arms behind him. They struggled to and fro until Dick had dragged him to the center of the floor.

"Let me go!" Reynolds shouted. "Damn you, Meade, I know you'll do that. Let me go, will you! You don't know what he's done to me or you'd help instead of sabotage. Let me go!"

The noise of the struggle brought Jane from the dining room. She stood half way a moment, watching the convulsions of the breathless men, like one charmed and beguiled of motility.

hands!" he cried and rushed toward the door.

Jane staggered after him. "Bob—Bob, dear! My boy! My husband!" she called beseechingly. The tenderness of her tone, the love note in her voice, arrested him for a moment where the antagonism of his friend had only accentuated his hysteria. He stopped and looked at her.

"Bob!" she cried softly, "come back—back with me. I know I've been to blame. It's all my fault."

He only looked and his eyes suddenly were befogged with tears. His hands dropped again. The same inertia as before overcame him. He started back toward her, tottered and fell headlong to the floor.

The terror stricken wife stooped and caught his head in her hands, showering it with kisses.

"Bob! Bob! Speak to me!" she cried.

She pressed open his eyelids, her own tears mingling with his, while Dick, with more practical mind, forced brandy through his lips and sent her to the kitchen for ice. They packed the broken ice about his head and chafed his hands, but in vain. He gave no sign of returning consciousness.

Their physician lived only a few doors away and in a few minutes, having been summarily aroused by Dick, he was bending over his neighbor's side.

"A nervous collapse," he said tentatively. He mixed a stimulant and administered some of it. "Get some of this into him every 15 minutes and he'll come around. His heart action is good," he added, bending an ear to Reynolds' chest. "It's only a question of time—minutes, maybe hours, but there is no immediate danger. Come," he finished, curtly, addressing Dick. "We'll carry him up to his room."

Jane followed and, weeping silently, helped to get her husband into bed. The doctor, like all others, assured that there was no pressing peril, prepared to resume his broken rest, but Jane would not let him go. He sat down resignedly, feeling of the stricken man's pulse and from time to time administering the stimulant as he had directed. At last Reynolds' lids parted and he stared weakly about. He looked vacantly at the doctor, but as Jane knelt and pressed her lips to his he recognized her and spoke her name.

"That's all," the physician said as he arose. "Never mind the medicine now. I'll send a nurse in the morning. Your husband needs a rest, Mrs. Reynolds—a good one. As soon as he is up get him away from business, and—from other things."

He looked significantly at Dick, who nodded a knowing assent. Then he bade him good night.

Reynolds, his hand clasped in his wife's, lay quiet, speaking softly now and then to assure her of his consciousness, and then weakly indicated that he would like to sleep.

"I'll bunk on the divan in Bob's den," Dick told Jane. "You're all right, old man, I know," he said, bending over his friend. "You want what the doctor ordered—rest, and you want it now."

He slipped out and left them alone.

CHAPTER XXIII

Six Hundred Dead—And One! The days that followed Bob's collapse were the happiest he had known for over a year. Jane's tender nature and her deep rooted love for her husband asserted itself in a thousand ways.

Reynolds was by nature a physical giant. He had narrowly escaped a severe attack of brain fever, but through the skillful administering of morphine and the soothing influence of his wife's presence he rallied rapidly. For nearly a week after the night he had succumbed neither made any reference to the causes of the collapse.

One day when the patient seemed stronger than usual Jane was seated at the bedside with his hand in hers.

"Bob," she said suddenly, "I haven't said a word to you about—about what happened that night. I've just wanted you to forget it, dearest, and get strong and well like your old, good self. But I know you are better now and that you'll be better still when I tell you what I've planned—Dick and I. Mr. Brand's fixed everything at the bank and as soon as you are able we're going back to Staten Island and live with Dick and his mother in the bungalow. Won't that be fine?"

"God bless you, my dear," was all he said.

"But, Bob," she cried, "aren't you glad? Aren't you glad it's all over and that we can start again just like we were? We'll never see the Brands again. Dearest, I know I was wrong; wrong all the time."

She looked at him now through mist filled eyes.

"Oh, you don't know how I've suffered," she cried softly. "You thought if over night after fight here at your side and I just want to wipe the last year out of our lives and begin all over. We can; I know we can. Can't we?"

He drew her head down to his and kissed her. He could not bear to part.

His hand clasped in his wife's, lay quiet, speaking softly now and then to assure her of his consciousness, and then weakly indicated that he would like to sleep.

"I'll bunk on the divan in Bob's den," Dick told Jane. "You're all right, old man, I know," he said, bending over his friend. "You want what the doctor ordered—rest, and you want it now."

his pocket.

His nervousness and distraction puzzled Jane, but for once her womanly intuition failed her. In her eagerness to restore her husband to the place of her own renewed hopefulness she tried to force her visitor into a conversation about the bungalow and their future there, until Dick, unable to contain himself longer, wheeled and faced them. He jerked the paper from his pocket, concealing the front of it toward his chest.

"You are sure you're fit—Bob?" he asked breathlessly. "Able to hear anything I say and act quickly?"

Reynolds, who had watched his friend closely from the moment of his entrance, had detected what Jane had not. Something—he knew not what—had happened; something that augured no good. He read the import of Meade's constant questioning about his strength and braced himself accordingly.

"Bob—and Jane listen to me!" he cried brokenly. "The Lusitania sails at one o'clock tomorrow morning. I have your tickets here—you must catch the boat without fail—and go under assumed names."

With a wild, frightened look Jane got to her feet and her husband pale but more contained, did likewise.

"What is it, Dick?" he asked hoarsely. "Leave America—assumed names? For God's sake speak out. Don't keep a man in misery!"

Dinner Stories

Paul Rainey was describing to a New York reporter some of his adventures with lions in Nairobi. "Once, near out bail of putrid meat," he said, "I awoke from a light doze in the dawn to find a lion actually sniffing at my feet. I reached for my rifle and, with a 'whoof,' the lion was gone."

"You must have felt rather queer," said the reporter. "It is strange," said Mr. Rainey, "but the one thing that ran through my mind was a story—a story about a man who had stayed out at a banquet very, very late. This man awoke in the dawn and saw, perched on the foot of his bed, an organ-grinder's monkey that had climbed through the window. His hand trembling, his eyes bloodshot, the man drew his revolver from beneath his pillow and said: 'If you're a real monkey it's a bad lookout for you, and if you're not it's a bad lookout for me.'"

The man who had made his pile in the South American trade advertised for a valet.

He looked the first applicant over. "Have you valeted long?" he asked.

"Me?" replied the applicant. "Why, I'm a regular valetudinarian!"

He got the job.

HAIR FELL OUT BY HANDFULS

Also Had Itching Burning Scalp, Hair Thin, Dry and Lifeless. Could Not Sleep. A. Junt of Itching, Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

"Kalamazoo, Mich. — 'My hair began falling out about five years ago and I also had itching, burning scalp. My hair fell out by handfuls and it was thin, dry and lifeless. I could not sleep well on account of the itching. My hair became so thin I commenced using 'Cuticura' and 'Cuticura Ointment' and I had lost so much hair there was not enough remaining to cover the 'scalp'."

"I used — also quantities of — and which did not relieve the torture which at times was almost unbearable, especially at night. I was obliged to bathe my head in soda water in order to get any rest. I then tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment, rubbing the Cuticura Ointment into the scalp at night and washing it out in the morning with Cuticura Soap. It was about four weeks when I was entirely cured." (Signed) Mrs. Henry Frisk, March 21, 1914.

PLANS TO ORGANIZE WISCONSIN FARMERS

State Organizer Will Spend Week in Rock County in Interests of Game Protective Society.

"I shall enroll between 20,000 and 25,000 Rock county farmers and sportsmen as members of the Wisconsin Farmers' Protective Association," declared E. B. Wilcox, the society's state organizer, who arrived in Janesville today from Racine. Mr. Wilcox expects to spend a week in Rock county enlisting farmers and hunters in the movement which is calculated to secure further protection of the game and fish as well as of the song birds. "We mean war on the poacher, the trapper and the hunter who kill off the song birds, tear down farmers' fences, mutilate property, break laws and otherwise prove themselves enemies of real sportsmanship," said Mr. Wilcox.

The Rock county rod and gun club of three hundred will be affiliated with the organization that Mr. Wilcox represents. A large membership will be secured among the farmers whose rights in the matter of hunting and fishing have been largely overlooked and whose land and property has been damaged by the reckless and lawless sportsmen. The organization, according to Wilcox, expects to enroll two-thirds of the voters of Wisconsin in its ranks, so that it will be able to back up its demands from the legislature. Local societies will be formed and local organizers will be enlisted in the work.

SHOPIERE

Shopiere, Aug. 31.—Cornelius Van Kuren was born at Newburg, Orange county, New York, Jan. 12th, 1825. He was married to Elizabeth King, his native place March 8th, 1854. "No one knows of his youth, with whom he lived over sixty years, he was deeply attached in ties of domestic love. Since her death, on May 29th, he seemed to lose all interest in life and cared only to follow her. To them were given seven children. Hiram and Mary died in infancy. Chas. V. died at Beloit in March, 1912. Three surviving as mourners today are J. S. Van Kuren of this place, Mrs. Jennie Osterman of Janesville, Mrs. Louisa Galy of Hammond, Indiana, and Mrs. Belva Gower of Janesville, Wis. In addition there are fourteen grand-children, six of whom are the pall-bearers today, and six great-grandchildren. Filial affection as well as parental love is strong in the family and mother and father received constant and loving care in the months of pain and weakness before death welcomed them. Mr. Van Kuren bade good-bye to his young family and enlisted in the Union army Nov. 17, 1862, when about thirty-seven years of age. His regiment was the 168th of New York volunteers. He was promoted from private to sergeant of Company C March 13, 1863, and continued in this office until the close of the civil war. He was stationed at Charleston, South Carolina, having faithfully served his country two years and eleven months. Some time after his return the local militia was organized and he remained in the militia until 1877, when he came to Janesville, where he lived most of the time for thirty-seven years. Here he supported his family by laboring as mail carrier and in filling a small farm. He was very industrious, economical and temperate. These are sterling qualities in a bread winner and two sons, even in advanced age, were kept free from debt and showed what cars and industry can accomplish when pressed by age and sickness. He was a very silent, reserved man, whose sole recreation was fidelity in solitude.

Mr. Van Kuren's death was caused by kidney trouble from which he suffered for several years and the weakness with heart failure and the weakness of extreme age. He passed away gently Sunday evening, Aug. 23rd, at 5:30 o'clock at the advanced age of eighty-nine years, eight months and eleven days. He was held at home in Shopiere Wednesday afternoon. The music was by Miss Sweet and Mrs. Brown. The sermon by Pastor White was from 1 Sam. 16:7 and described the soldier's virtuousness. WHY HAVE YOU FOUND THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH?

THE OLD ACROBAT IS HAPPY OVER THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW

HE used to switch tobacco every few weeks. Then a friend gave him a small chew of "Right-Cut." Steady user now. Says it's the Real Tobacco Chew.

Quite the regular thing with "Right-Cut" users. A man is glad he found it—and just naturally passes the good word along.

Pure, sappy, full-bodied tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco, just nibble on it until you find the strength chew the smoke you take. Tuck it away.

Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short ahead so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary cheap tobacco makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

WONDERFUL CIRCUS PAGEANT SURPRISES SHOW VISITORS

Front Line of the Ballet

A Sylph of the Silks and Spangles

Hush Day at King'sville

Nero has watched his Rome burn to a cinder beneath the encircling folds of a circus tent. Pompeii has fallen to ruins in the scattered sawdust rings and elephants take her last look at Egypt just before the clown's entry for the big arena numbers. And now, the wise King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba have been made the hero and heroine of a circus spectacle surrounded with all the gorgeous pageantry and lavish costumes that the wealth and ingenuity of master showmen can devise.

And so Ringling Brothers are this season featuring a mammoth spectacle production wherein the wisest of Kings is the center of the most glittering array of pantomimic magnificence ever offered in circuses. Plan to see a spectacle such as that which will be seen in Jamesville when the shows of the famous five brothers exhibit here next Thursday is a tremendous task. It means the massing of more than a thousand actors and hundreds of horses into great ensemble groups. Fortunately the show grounds have not the limitations of the theatre stage and, for the purpose of making their gigantic production Ringling Brothers have had made a specially constructed tent measuring 520 feet in length by 280 feet in width—the largest stretch of canvas ever carried.

"Solomon and the Queen of Sheba" is produced under the personal direction of Al Ringling, assisted by a corps of stage managers headed by Ottobark, balletmaster from the Metropolitan Grand Opera House. The spectacle is made a part of the circus program and opens the afternoon and evening performances. Its pageants are a series of brilliant and the processions presented when Solomon and Sheba's queen vie with one another in their contest for supremacy in riches, are said to be the most remarkable displays of their kind ever seen in America.

National Geographic Society Primer, No. 2

GHENT—The capital of East Flanders, Belgium, at the confluence of the Scheldt and the Lys. The city is divided by the rivers and by canals, some 300 feet high, built in 1182-1183 lands connected by over 200 bridges. In the center of the city stands the unfinished Belfry, a square tower some 300 feet high, built in 1182-1183. One of Ghent's most interesting institutions is the great Beguine or home of German and Dutch sisterhoods, which constitutes a little town of itself. It is surrounded by walls and a moat and contains numerous small houses, 18 convents and a church. Seven hundred Beguines, women devoted to work and prayer, there. Ghent was captured by the French in 1698, 1708 and 1745. The treaty of peace following the war of 1812 between Great Britain and the United States was signed here in 1814. It has a population of approximately 175,000. A great exposition was held here during 1913 in which Germany, Holland, England and France took part.

OSTEND—The Atlantic City of Belgium, with a population of about 45,000, situated at almost the central point on the 42 miles of sea-coast that belong to Belgium. In the old days it was strongly fortified, but in 1865 the last vestiges of its ramparts were removed. Since then a new town has been created in which a solid granite dike or parade wharf two miles long, a casino, royal chalet and a race course are features. Ostend is in direct railway communication with Brussels, Cologne and Berlin.

VISEGARD—One of the eight principal military stations of the eastern frontier of Bosnia, 43 miles east of the capital, Sarajevo, where the assassinations took place that were the immediate cause of the European war. The town is about 10 miles west of the Serbian frontier.

ALIST—A town in the west central Belgium, situated on the western bank of the Dender River, midway between Brussels and Ghent, 16 miles from each place. It was the ancient capital of what was called imperial Flanders, near the confluence of the Dender River. It was one of the first printing presses in Europe. Its population is about 33,000. The city and the surrounding region are famous for their hop gardens and linen-bleaching establishments. The meadows south of Alost are often covered with linen undergoing a bleaching process.

TERMONDE—One of the five fortified places in Belgium on the Dender River, near the confluence of the Scheldt. Its fortifications are old—consisting of two forts and a walled city. It was here that Louis XIV was forced to beat a hasty retreat in 1667, because its defenders opened the dikes and flooded the country. The population is approximately 11,000.

MAKES ATTACK ON WILSON AND SUGAR

Winfield Jones Says, U. S. Deliberately Planned to Destroy Big Industry.

By WINFIELD JONES. Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—Absolute destruction of the sugar industry in this country is laid at the door of the Wilson administration and the Democratic Congress.

Events have demonstrated in a convincing manner the incredible folly of the democratic congress and administration of Wilson. In withdrawing protection from the sugar producing industry of the United States and its insular dependencies, what other nation, civilized, would have deliberately planned to destroy so important an industry? It has been any tree-traders among the natives of Darkest Africa, one can hardly imagine that they would be capable of so inhuman an atrocity as that of legislating out of existence so important a source of domestic employment and profit.

Within ten months of the enactment of the law that is to put American sugar growers into a condition of desperation comes a great European war which halts production in Germany, Austria, Russia and France. They have up to this time been the chief sources of Europe's sugar supply. These countries have been producing at the rate of 7,500,000 tons of sugar a year, which is about 80 percent of the world's best sugar product and more than one-third of the total sugar crop of the world. More than 10,000,000 men have been called away from the service of industrial and agricultural production. A big reduction in the output of beet sugar must ensue and a sharp advance in sugar prices has already taken place. No one knows where the advance will stop. Ten cents a pound is predicted if the European war should last a year or more.

Meanwhile, under a destroying influence of the sugar production in the United States has been materially diminished. Our own sugar growers are in no position to take advantage of the shortage in the European supply. The certainty of free-trade, commencing with 1916, has already put out of business many thousands of acres of cane lands in Louisiana and many thousands of acres of beet sugar lands in the Northern States. Accordingly there has been a shut-down of many cane-grinding mills in the South and many beet sugar factories in the north. Many millions of capital have been lost and many thousands of work people deprived of employment.

An article in Hearst's Magazine tells in detail the dreadful havoc wrought by free-trade in the sugar producing industry of Louisiana. Also it tells how, after having had the Louisiana delegation swung to him at the Baltimore convention in 1912, pursuant to Professor Wilson's pre-nomination pledge that the tariff of 1913 should not contain a free sugar provision, the Professor, having become President, entirely forgot the promise and was directly instrumental in bringing about the sugar clause of the Underwood tariff bill. The story has for its authority the then Representative and now Senator-elect Broussard of Louisiana. Mr. Broussard has never since then visited the White House.

The whole story of free-trade is sickening and disheartening. Whether or not the episode of the promise to Broussard be truthfully narrated—and there is small reason to doubt its truth—the fact remains that in sacrificing domestic sugar production upon the altar of free-trade the present administration and Congress have made up an unequalled record either of gross and reckless ignorance, or else of conscious brutality. Political and economic history will register that verdict. There is no escape from it.
